FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS - Second Session.

House.

WASHINGTON, April 10.

The House adopted the Senate resolution for the appointment of two members of the Senate Finance Committee as a Joint Ways and Means Committee as a Joint Committee in reference to consideration of the alleged loss in revenue arising from the alleged loss of the tax on cigars and other articles subject to excise duty. The House was later Committee of the Whole on the army appropriation bill. General debate followed on the amendment prohibiting the use of troops at the polls as a police force.

Mr. Keller said that Congress to-day (four years after the close of the war) was attempting by stealth to do in peaceful times what an exorable war had failed to do.

General debate was continued by Mr. Hawley, who said that the Democratic party upon its election had not participated in the debate and especially inquiring whether they were afraid it would bring about the nomination of Grant, or whether they were afraid to discuss it. Mr. Robinson followed in opposition to the amendment, claiming that the military power should not be subordinate to civil power.

Mr. McCord thought the amount was an extraordinary claim, but that it did not prevent any laws, and contended that the President of the Senate and House combined had not power to dispend the military power on the statute book. He was the highest tyrant act that the House could assume, to dispend with an extraordinary claim.

Mr. Russell was not sure but the Democratic side was taking a wiser course in remaining silent. If there were any law say law, he would not discuss it in this amendment.

Mr. Frye then spoke, what he said would be a ten, many a time when talking alone one side. He proceeded to make a very amusing speech which was listened to with interest by the members of the House. He said that the amendment was "tame and cowardly."

How was that for a gentleman from Illinois to be father (or at any rate the paternal father) of a tame and cowardly amendment? The speaker then said that the amendment was cowardly and sneaking beyond any question. He had nothing to say in regard to its origin, except that it had been born in the white and had not grown a particle since it had been born. It had been born in that spirit when the Democratic party was in power, and in solemn caucus in this magnificent chamber had determined that no officer of the army or the navy or of the civil service should keep peace at the polls with armed men.

Mr. Frye continued in a jocosely sarcastic speech, styling this contemptuous measure of a rider in a bill as a "mountainous Democratic party which is not owned even by its father."

Mr. Conger rallied at the Democrats for cowardice.

The Committee rose and the House adjourned.

HORRORS OF HEATHENISM.

Mandaly Propitiatory Sacrifices.

700 PEOPLE BURNED ALIVE

King Thabaw Dying of Leprosy.

RANGOON, April 11. Seven hundred men, women, boys, girls, priests and foreigners have been burned to death in the towers of the city walls as a sacrifice for the restoration of the King's health. The King in Mandalay, his frightful and horrible disease, leprosy, has seized the city. The King's illness is said to be leprosy.

MASSACHUSETTS.

LYNN, April 10. A bad fire started in the woods in the north part of the town about noon, and as the wind was blowing a gale it increased with great rapidity. It is now (3 P. M.) just in fear of the village, and fears are entertained for the safety of the buildings there. Several hundred cords of cut wood have been burned besides growing timber.

LYNN, April 11. That extremity of the burning which threatened Seaside Village ran into a swamp and was extinguished without damage to any building. The fire in the north part of the town, extending north and south; the north edge now in Kingston, the south end running towards this town. Gangs of men have been seen cutting wood in the woods of houses in the woods north of the town directly in the path of the fire.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

PORTSMOUTH, April 10. The schooner Gardiner W. Tarr, from Georges, reports falling in with schooner John A. Cook, in the abandoned, twenty-five miles off Cape Ann, with much merchandise and crew badly. Her ballast shifted and the Tarr made an unsuccessful effort to bring her in. The Cook was towed from Rockland for Provincetown, where she belonged. She touched at Gloucester and left the 6th inst.

Fire-Insured and Burned.

HAYFIELD, April 11. A two-story wooden tenement block was burned this morning. It was occupied by ten families. South H. Brown, alias McGarry, aged 35, and Charles Abbott, aged about 50, who occupied an attic, were suspected. The boiler was partially burned. Mrs. Ann Roberts was severely burned in the face and injured internally by jumping from the second window. The origin of the fire is supposed to be accidental. Damage $4,000; fully insured.

"WHAT SHALL THE HARVEST BE?"

A CHAPTER OF DARK DEEDS.

Burglars at Work in Androscoggin Co. LEWISTON JUNCTION, April 10. Robbers attempted to enter the store of M. B. Pinney, in Norway, on Thursday night, but were frightened away by the alarm of the night watch. Last night they entered the store of J. A. Buckman & Co. at Mechanic Falls carrying away a large lot of silks and other valuable goods. There is no clue to the thieves.

A Brutal Murder in New Hampshire.

NEW MARKET, April 10. Yesterday while three little girls were picking May flowers in the woods near a farm, they discovered the headless body of a young man in a nearly nude state. The young authorities are aware that a brutal murder has been committed, by whom is yet a mystery. The body was found lying face downward, with its head cut off by a sharp cutting instrument, and only covered with a shirt. The right arm was severed from the body at the shoulder and the head had also been cut off. A line of blood was found. About 300 feet away a coat, vest and pants were found, and in another direction, some distance, a blue cloth, cap, necktie and shirt bosom, which had been torn completely off, with three gold studs with garnet settings in the bosom. Also found in a little clearing. It is evident that here the murder was committed. Several of the men in the woods were collected about and torn clothing, all indicating the victim's terrible struggle for life. The authorities are carefully investigating the matter, meanwhile great excitement prevails in the neighborhood.

An autopsy revealed additional atrocities perpetrated by the murderer upon his victim.

Later.

The body of the murdered man found in Hurn's woods last night has been identified as that of Peter Davis, a friend of the town, who disappeared three weeks ago. An inquest is in progress at Durham and will close on Friday. The authorities are not prepared to be concluded for several days.

Supposed Murder of a Maine Man.

BOSTON, April 10. Jacob Whitney was found dead on the beach at Nahant, Mass., on Thursday night. It is supposed he was murdered by some drunken fellows with whom he was associating yesterday, and with a view to robbing him. After several days' search, it is believed that he was taken to Long beach & Co. and was found there. Whitney was from Maine. The authorities have ordered an investigation.

Investigations so far into the cause of the death of Whitney.
